

Son asked to pay maintenance slams father

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Surat: "For two minutes, imagine yourself in my place as a young boy seeing his mother being hammered savagely and vomiting blood. Her screams still ring in my ears. Even animals are better than this man. What would you do with a father who destroyed your mother and your life and left you nothing but misery and lifelong scars. How much money will you pay a man like this?"

It was with this intensity that Pesi Satarawala wrote to TOI in response to a report that appeared on June 9, 2009, that a court in Navsari in South Gujarat had again served a notice to this non-resident Indian and now a US citizen to pay a monthly maintenance of Rs 5,000 to his father, Aspi Satarawala.

Community newsletters have been flooded with responses supporting Pesi Satarawala (41) against Aspi (65).

On May 31 last year, Navsari's judicial magistrate first class passed an ex parte order for payment of maintenance.

The latest TOI report last month was based on a fresh court notice sent to Pesi to be present on June 29. Pesi, however, abstained again saying his lawyers were still examining the case. He says all the notices were being sent to Chennai, where his in-laws live, and he was not aware of the legal proceedings till now.

"I came to know about all this two weeks ago. My lawyers are now reviewing the case and will take all legal action as necessary to expose a fraud and evil man like him. We will produce all the legal documents including my mom's divorce papers in court," Pesi told TOI in an email.

Pesi went ahead and raised the larger issue of "maintenance laws like these, passed with a noble intention, being mistused by deadbeat parents who have disowned and dumped their children when they are small." When confronted by TOI with what his son Pesi had to say, Aspi said, "Why is he not coming to the court? For a moment, let us believe that I have not taken care of him, but I am still his father. He should come to the court and I will accept whatever the court decides."

"From the time I was 7 till today, I have not seen him. I am 41 now. For 34 years, he did not even bother to look at us. After I came to America, his love for me grew by leaps and bounds and he sent me a email of how much he misses me and since I am in America and making money, I should let him stay with me," replied Pesi.

Feat of feet: Polio-hit girl uses legs to henna hands

Puja Gupta applies henna using her foot

Yagnesh Mehta | TNN

Surat: Your destiny is in your own hands, they say. A 12-year-old differently-abled girl is fighting all odds to re-define this adage. Pooja Gupta, who lost both her hands in a polio attack, uses her feet to do intricate henna designs.

"It takes me about 15 minutes to do henna on both hands," said Pooja, who stays in a residential school managed by a welfare trust for differently-abled children in Umra. It took about a year for her to learn the art from her friends. Hailing from Benaras in Uttar Pradesh, Pooja's parents work in a textile loom in Pandesara and couldn't take care of her. The girl, who suffered from polio at a very young age, was brought to the residential school about a year ago. "She is very confident and excels at whatever she does. She can write using her feet and finishes her exam papers well in time," said Kanubhai Tailor, chairman of Disable Welfare Trust.

According to him, Pooja does not depend on others on anything. "She washes her own clothes," said a school official.

Her skills have already won her many admirers. "She is an inspiration for people like us," said Rekha Pansariya, a volunteer who visits the school regularly travelling all the way from Gandhinagar.

What started off as a hobby now looks like a part-time occupation for Pooja.

"I want to pursue designing as a career option and become a mehendi artist. I know I have a long way to go, but I am prepared to work harder," she said.

Parsis support the son

Community newsletters have been flooded with responses supporting Pesi Satarawala against his father Aspi. Examples from 'Parsi Khabar':

"Sometime in 1974, Aspi disappeared leaving Villoo and Pesi in the lurch in a unforgiving harsh world. I have seen my aunt literally slog her whole life and provided for everything to Pesi and made him what he is today."

ness, but ensured that she brought up her son Pesi with a straight and strong mind."

HOMI DHUNIBHOY

"Pesi and I grew up together in Pune. Aspi gave Pesi nothing but grief and abuse. The drunken, abusive father waited till his wife passed away to claim his rights to money."

"We will always remember Villoo aunty as a wonderful and doting parent, who tirelessly strove to bring up and educate her son Pesi despite all the hardships and after being so cruelly abandoned by her husband Aspi."

KEKOO VACHA

"I have known Pesi and his mother. Aspi abandoned them when Pesi was seven years old. Villoo endured such pain and unhappi-

"Aspi abandoned his wife and the only child. Through sheer hardwork, Villoo raised Pesi, educated him, and raised him as a single parent. Aspi was missing in action."

CINEMA OF THE WEEK

NIKHAT KAZMI

Sankat City ★★1/2

Cast: Kay Kay Menon, Rimmi Sen, Anupam Kher
Direction: Pankaj Advani
Duration: 1 hour 55 minutes

Car thief Guru and petty crook Mona team up reluctantly to repay a small-time don's stolen loot in slummy Mumbai. Do they end up as partners-in-crime or not?

Thank God for Bollywood's independent film movement! No big budgets, no super stars, no glitzy locales. Just a smart story, smartly told with a bunch of smart-pant actors who have nothing to boast about — no brand equity, no blockbuster fees, no million dollar vanity vans — only an overabundance of talent. For the record, it was this off-the-mainstream movement which gave us some recent sparkling gems like Khosla Ka Ghosla, Johnny Gaddar, Parzania, Black Friday, Mumbai Meri Jaan, Aamir...to name just a few. Now, it gives us Sankat City, another edgy take on Mumbai's gutter and grime which makes for riveting cinema. Pankaj Advani's landscape is a page out of Shantaram's Mumbai's: the sunless back alleys, the junkyard garages, the C-grade film shoots, the sleazy lodges, the small-time bars, the shadowy godmen and gangster dens. And so are the characters: Guru, a petty car thief with a yen for fish, Mona, a twopenny crook with a derring-do that defies everything, Faujdar, the wacko extortionist, Ganpat, the wicked and wized car mechanic, Gogi, the junk film producer, Sikandar Khan, the flop actor, Suleiman, the heartless assassin...It's a motley crowd of drifters and losers who have just one thing in common. They all want to chase the Mumbai dream and get rich quick, any which way in a metropolis that allows ample scope for thuggery and crime to peacefully co-exist with law and order.

Fasten your seat belts for a zany black comedy that begins with Guru (Kay Kay) stealing a car, stuffed with money and ends after a colourful touristy ride through Mumbai's downside, as our beleaguered hero tries to pay back the lost loot. But not before he connects with the bad Bong girl, Mona (Rimmi Sen), who has her own get-rich-quick mission planned and needs a partner to swindle the pop-corn munching property dealer (Yashpal Sharma). Interestingly, the connection doesn't end here. Like an intricate web, it keeps adding other interesting links, without losing out on continuity and logic. So, Guru and Mona must first encounter the other wannabe millionaires — the film producer, the actor's double, the don's sidekick, the disgruntled chauffeur, the absent-minded mechanic — before they can return don Faujdar's (Anupam Kher) stolen money.

The film may have a raw look and lack technical finesse, but don't be fooled. For Sankat City is a roller-coaster ride through downtown Mumbai (or any other metro) with its chota-mota crime and its chatpata characters. Truly, a delectable bhelpuri, marked by some fine acting by the ensemble cast. Savour it.

The Proposal (romance) ★★1/2
Cast: Sandra Bullock, Ryan Reynolds
Direction: Anne Fletcher
Duration: 1 hour 47 minutes

Sandra Bullock, a top-shot editor tries to enter into a marriage of convenience with her assistant, Ryan Reynolds to escape being deported to Canada. Trouble begins when she actually falls in love.

There's something about Sandra Bullock that makes her instantly connect with you. Ever since her clumsy, nervous rookie act against the cocky Sylvester Stallone in Demolition Man and her er-um-I-can't-bravado in Speed, with super hero Keanu Reeves, Sandra has carried forth her title of Ms Congeniality with an unparalleled charisma. And unlike larger-than-life actresses like Julia Roberts, Angelina Jolie, Sandra's appeal has been more of the lovable girl-next-door types. One who can sweep you off your feet with her understated charm and restrained chic. Here, she may have a role that demands her to do a retake of Meryl Streep's despicable boss act in The Devil Wears Prada, but she does it with a signature flourish that is hers alone.

Top editor Margaret Tate is hailed as a witch and a terrorist by almost all her employees. And not for nothing. For Margaret is the archetypal corporate climber who would brook no interference in her ascent to the top job. Even if it means a deportation to Canada, since she is an illegal immigrant in New York, now that her visa has expired. Margaret finds a way out of this maze too. She proposes to her assistant, Andrew (Ryan Reynolds) and lures him into a marriage of convenience with the prospect of a promotion. Needless to say, Andrew hates her and longs for her to come under a cab...But ah! love works in mysterious ways, doesn't it. And love stories are always such fun for die-hard romantics.

Old man killed over Rs 1,500 dispute

Surat: A man was killed over a dispute of Rs 1,500 at Bhat bridge in Udhana area here on Tuesday. According to Udhana police station officials, accused Rajesh Saroj clubbed Tribhuvanprasad Verma to death and also injured Verma's son Amar Bahadur when he was asked to clear his food bill amounting to Rs 1,500.

"Rajesh was a paying guest with Verma family. He shifted elsewhere later without paying," said an official of Udhana police station. SOURCE: SANDESH

Dy mamlatdar murder case: Land dealer detained

Rajkot: Investigations into the murder of Ramesh Bhalala, the deputy mamlatdar of the irrigation department of Rajkot who was found murdered on July 4, have led police to a land dealer. Officials of Rajkot rural and Gondal police station have rounded up this man and are in the process of interrogating him. Police are also questioning the driver and conductor of the bus, Bhalala last traveled in.

Rajkot SP D N Patel said, "Our investigation is on the right track. We are hopeful of cracking the case in the next 48 hours." However, examination of the forensic reports, which are yet to arrive, will make things more clear, Patel added. Patel also said, some members of Bhalala's family have been non-co-operative.

The police are also questioning a man dealing in real estate, the driver and conductor of the bus in which Bhalala traveled last from Rajkot to Gondal in connection with his murder.

Police believe, Bhalala had had financial dealings with either of them and, after the scheduled trip on June 30, they met Bhalala, either at his house or somewhere outside.

"Up until now, this duo has not provided us with satisfactory information. However, we are suspecting something amiss and will arrest them if required," said an officer investigating the case.

Police have also seized a personal diary from Bhalala's house, which has details of his daily routine.
